

TORONTO AMERICAN DESERTERS' COMMITTEE LETTER

A lot has been made of the fact that there are thousands of young men deserting the United States armed forces and coming to Canada, but there has been very little told as to why they come and what they do once they get here.

For some, desertion may be an escape from a process of dehumanization, for others a moral decision, or a political act. Many desert because they have seen in the field the results of the illegal, genocidal war in Viet Nam. Most deserters come to Canada because they refuse to participate in the involvement in Indo-China. In a large percentage of cases desertion is prompted by the receiving of orders for Vietnam. A newer phenomenon is the increasingly larger group of deserters who went into the army with the express purpose of organizing in the service, and who have finally been forced to leave by undue harassment or orders for Vietnam.

The only second thoughts a deserter has are toward his family and close friends. Upon examining this factor, it becomes apparent that any country whose young men walk such a thin line between patriotism and all-out dissent is indeed due for a major change. Changes not only manifest by members of the Army seeking "asylum" in another country, but also so vividly manifest in the streets, on college campuses, and even within the armed forces.

Unconsciously, all deserters (and draft resisters) feel this all-out dissent as a very valid reason to "cop-out" on their government. When a man's only question, upon deciding to desert the armed forces of his country is pertaining to his immediate family or close friends, then that man is very deeply dissatisfied about something that his government is doing.

It is impossible for a person to grow up hating his country, unless he feels that he is being lied to. Lies only create disrespect, disrespect spawns hatred (or at least dissent). True dissent, all-out dissent, cries for change. A nation whose youth finds itself up against a brick wall of bourgeois pseudo-political bull, will have to some day realize that it is about to lose the cream of its crop, in droves, by the thousands.

What are the implications of desertion? A deserter has no further choices. He must remain in Canada - if he goes back into the States, he faces a dishonorable discharge, the stockade and the increasingly possible chance of "accidental" death. By becoming an exile, the deserter has been forced to accept the fact that he can never return - there have been cases of exiles attempting to return for the funerals of their parents, only to have the FBI waiting for them before the burial. In many cases the deserter must deal with family and friends who are not only unsympathetic, but who threaten him with being turned over to the police, or who tell him that because he has dared to act according to his beliefs, he is disowned and henceforth will be considered dead - all this at the time when his need for support and understanding is greatest.

While in the army, life and time is regimented. Everything is done on a certain timetable: you are told when to eat, sleep, and breath. Upon deserting this suddenly ceases, and quite often the deserter is left feeling adrift. Add to this the fact that the deserter can do little but wait (he can't work until he's landed, and he often arrives with little or no money), and you are left with a potentially dangerous situation.

What can and is being done to aid the deserter? At present, we are discouraging those who do not have to be here from coming (those who are deferred or who have not received induction notices). They are being told that, since resources of exile organizations are limited, we believe that the deserter must come first - he has no further options open to him, while the dodger can go through a vast number of appeals, etc and can successfully delay his date of induction for an almost indefinite period of time.

Once he is here, we provide the deserter with housing, food, clothing, counseling, and when possible money for such things as transportation and

...cigarettes. Although they appear to be a minor thing, the idea of not having even pocket change can become extremely demoralizing and has often been the final cause of deserters feeling that they "might as well return and get it over with."

By discouraging dodgers, we are left with more time to deal with the problems of the deserters, hence the deserters are getting landed quicker. Once they are landed, we are able to continue our assistance until it is no longer required, which is usually after their first paycheck. After that, we can still continue whatever personal counseling is required, and also, by maintaining contact, continue to build our American exile community.

To be successful, we need your help; both financially and in person. As always, we need financial help to carry out any of our projects. The ADC is now doing all the housing of newly arrived draft immigrants in the the Toronto area. Long and short-term housing is available to draft-dodgers and deserters without sufficient funds. But summer vacations, the closing of a community housing project and the increased influx following Cambodia and Kent State are taking their toll on the effectiveness of our housing program.

The housing of the new arrival until he receives his landed immigrant status is probably the most vital of our services and we just won't be able to do it unless we get more volunteers. If you have a cot in the basement, an extra room or just some empty space on the floor please volunteer to be on our housing list. You name the conditions and specifications. Tell your friends about our situation and if you can't help perhaps they can.

In order to ease the housing pressure the ADC has established the first of a series of co-ops for new arrivals. Because of financial limitations the people living at the co-op must share the majority of expenses but with the help of individuals and organizations concerned with the welfare of the American expatriots, we may soon be able to set up a couple more "half-way houses" with rent at most half of what it normally would be. The co-op program is well under way but help is needed to make it a success. A house needs more than bodies and bare walls - it needs furniture, kitchen utensils etc. Do you have anything you can spare?

FREE CLOTHING: Thanks to all those people who have taken the time and effort to donate clothes to us, we have the entire basement full of boxes and around five racks of various articles of clothing. The only problem is that we seem to have an overabundance of size 40 pants and baby clothes. We seriously need pants size 28 - 36, underwear and shoes. Again, thanks.

By the way, a couple of weeks ago four university students from the Buffalo N.Y. area dropped off a whole carload of clothes that they had collected in a campus wide drive to help their brothers north of the border. If we could only get Toronto Movement kids to take that kind of action! Thanks also for the three boxes of bed sheets, towels, clothing etc. from St. John, N.B. sent in care of the Toronto Women's Exile Group.

ANTHOLOGY: We are trying to get together something to prove to the Canadian public and Mayor Dennison that draft-dodgers and deserters have more to contribute to Canadian society than professional protest tactics and drug knowledge. Perhaps if some of you former Americans sent in some creations in the literary and visual arts we could run off a couple hundred copies and actually have your stuff published! Get in touch with Terry Pulliam at the ADC. Also if anyone has suggestions for other activities to help fill in the waiting time of deserters and dodgers - picnics, free music etc. call us or drop in and let us know. Invite a deserter for lunch.

Please write, telephone or drop in on us. We are open from 10:00 AM to 10:00 PM for normal business and 24 hours a day for new arrivals in need of counselling and/or housing.

It should be noted at the outset that the U.S. military would have no jurisdiction over returning draft evaders, such persons being within the jurisdiction of this organization.

[redacted]

In regard to military deserters, we have been in touch with appropriate representatives of the Army, Navy and Air Force. All have pointed out that while efforts are made to interrogate all military deserters returning from Canada who have been there for more than a few days, many of these deserters demand the services of a lawyer and choose not to submit to interrogation.

On September 25, 1970, [REDACTED], who has furnished reliable information in the past, advised that on this date [REDACTED] of the American Deserters Committee in Montreal, Quebec, contacted the Bronx Branch of the New York BPP seeking a BPP speaker for a meeting to be held by his organization in Montreal on October 4, 1970. [REDACTED] stated that they are going to hold a meeting "to relate to the Constitutional Convention" and "to get together some points to send down for the return of the exiles".

It is to be noted that a Revolutionary Peoples Constitutional Convention sponsored by the BPP is scheduled to be held in November, 1970 in Washington, D. C.

[REDACTED] also commented that the American Deserters Committee will participate in a meeting to be held on October 2 and 3, 1970, under the sponsorship of the Quebec, Vietnam, Palestine Solidarity Committee.

Regarding the October 4, 1970 meeting, [REDACTED] was advised that a representative of the BPP would attend and speak provided the American Deserters Committee furnish the BPP with two round trip tickets and accommodations in Montreal.

APPENDIX

BLACK PANTHER PARTY
Also Known As
Black Panther Party for Self-Defense

According to its official newspaper, the Black Panther Party (BPP) was started during December, 1966, in Oakland, California, to organize black people so they can take control of the life, politics and the destiny of the black community. It was organized by ROBBY SEALE, BPP Chairman, and HUEY P. NEWTON, BPP Minister of Defense. NEWTON was sentenced in 1968 to serve 2 to 15 years after being convicted of manslaughter in connection with the killing of an Oakland police officer.

The official newspaper, "The Black Panther", which further describes itself as the "Black Community News Service", states that the BPP advocates the use of guns and guerrilla tactics in its revolutionary program to end oppression of the black people. Residents of the black community are urged to arm themselves against the police who are consistently referred to in the publication as "pigs" who should be killed.

"The Black Panther" issue of September 7, 1968, contains an editorial by BPP Minister of Education, GEORGE MASON MURRAY, which ends with the following:

"Black men. Black people, colored persons of America, revolt everywhere! Arm yourselves. The only culture worth keeping is a revolutionary culture. Change. Freedom everywhere. Dynamite! Black Power. Use the gun. Kill the pigs everywhere."

Included in the introduction to an article appearing in the October 5, 1968, edition of "The Black Panther" is the statement, "...we will not dissent from American Government. We will overthrow it."

Issues of "The Black Panther" regularly contain quotations from the writings of Chairman MAO Tse-tung of the People's Republic of China and feature MAO's statement that "political power grows out of the barrel of a gun."

The national headquarters of the BPP is located at 3106 Shattuck Avenue, Berkeley, California. Branches have been established at various locations throughout the United States.

THE AMERICAN DESERTER COLONY IN CANADA

[REDACTED] the ADC and learned something about it. He said that the ADC was funded through donations and that six men sat on the council which controlled the ADC and that they received sometimes $300 - $400 a week in small donations. He said that many of these donations came from groups in the United States, such as the Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Peace in Vietnam. He said that he had seen one $150 donation from the New York Headquarters. He said they also received many donations from the American Friends Service Committee and that individual members in New York City sporadically sent checks and cash contributions. He said that many of the contributions were from college professors and all deposits were placed at the Bank of Montreal on Peel Street, where the ADC had an account.

[REDACTED] advised that he met another individual named [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] through talks with [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] he learned that his next desirable step would be to attain a landed immigrant status so that he could legally work in Canada. He said that in order for the Canadian government to grant a landed immigrant status it was necessary for applicants to show that they had at least $400 and that to meet this need, the ADC maintained a fund where people seeking landed immigrant status could borrow the money and later return it. However, [REDACTED] advised that many of the individuals who were lent $400 disappeared with it and were never seen again. [REDACTED] said it was his understanding that three basic ways to obtain landed immigrant status were to apply for it at the airport in Montreal, or at a border crossing, or at the Department of Manpower and Immigration within Canada, but this was the most difficult way to obtain the status. [REDACTED] said that raising the $400 was the chief obstacle to obtaining a landed immigrant status and that the ADC maintained a list of people who continually applied for the money and ran off with it.

[REDACTED] said that he was aware that there were other deserter colonies at Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton and Regina, Canada. He said he did not know how the other groups obtained their money but he said his group in Montreal, in addition to contributions from the United States, obtained a good deal of its money from donations from Canadian citizens. He said the list of donors was not kept at the ADC office but he believed it was kept by [REDACTED] and the finances of the ADC became an increasing problem and he was unable to accept [REDACTED] explanations of where the money was going.

The council which controlled the ADC, according to [REDACTED] consisted of [REDACTED]

Another member of the council was [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] quired the council at an open meeting, where approximately 50 people attended from the deserter colony, [REDACTED] as to where all the donations were going. In return the council accused them of being Central Intelligence Agency agitators who had been sent to destroy the ADC. [REDACTED] had been told by the council that the rent for their two-room office was $120 a month and they learned from the landlord that he was actually receiving $40 a month. [REDACTED] were aware that there was much more money coming into the group than was being accounted for. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] decided to separate from the ADC and formed the American Deserters Cooperative. He said this group started working with the Montreal Council to Aid War Resisters. [REDACTED] group, which was [REDACTED] mainly deserters, and the other group which consisted of mostly draft dodgers, and he said that they had the support from professional groups in Montreal and people were sent to some of these professionals for counselling. [REDACTED] group started to grow, they had fist fights and some vandalism in December of 1969, against their headquarters which was done by ADC members. He said some of the people who joined [REDACTED] were [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] and about seven other people. He said they were helped by an individual named [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] who got them a building from a woman he knew in the Finnish community and who could not sell the building. He said [REDACTED] also helped them obtain funds which helped them fix up their new quarters which were located at 31 Wolfe Street in Montreal. [REDACTED] group was made up of deserters whom he believed were sincere in their convictions and he distinguished them from draft dodgers whom he felt were about 85 percent non-sincere in their convictions.

Some of the individuals concerned with the deserter community were soon found not to be as sincere as [REDACTED] had hoped. He said that one day [REDACTED] telephoned from Texas looking for him, after he had left the community a few months prior. She told [REDACTED] that [REDACTED] had been collecting money from businessmen in Montreal for the deserter community and that she also had sent him $200. He said the conversation further developed that [REDACTED] had collected approximately $2,000 and had then deserted his fellow deserters. She said that [REDACTED] had been having problems [REDACTED] [REDACTED] said he believed that [REDACTED] later turned up in British Vancouver.
